Holiday Dinner Celebrates Miramonte

The OHS 2006 annual holiday dinner in December was a huge success with approximately 100 people in attendance; it was the best attended OHS dinner ever.

The entertaining theme this year was the 50th anniversary of Miramonte High School. Adding to the festive occasion were artifacts and decorations from Miramonte displayed around the Orinda Community Church where the dinner was held. Many speakers were featured that night along with a showing of a student-made video reflecting on Miramonte's 50 years.

A highlight of the evening was when Vanessa Crews and Marty Schimbor presented OHS with a DVD of digitized images representing 50 years of Miramonte's newspaper, the Mirador. This will be a very valuable addition to the OHS archives. Many thanks to everyone involved in this monumental project.

Speakers at the dinner included: Bran Yaich, a well-known former Miramonte principal who gave great insight to life at the school in the 70s and 80's; James Fessenden, the architect who designed Miramonte who is now in his 90's; Jim Negri, Acalanes Union High School District Superintendent; Raul Zamora, Miramonte's Principal;

Casa Azul An Orinda Landmark

Casa Azul, Built in 1925

Have you ever noticed the stately blue house located near the entrance to Miner road? Members of the Orinda Historical Society took a tour in January of this historic house known as Casa Azul. One of only three private homes to be designated as an official City of Orinda Historical Landmark, Casa Azul is an impressive Mediterranean Revival style home. The house was built in 1925, at the same time as the Orinda Country Club, and has been home to the Garbarino family since 1962. This beautiful estate shows a classic 1920s style which fits perfectly in the Orinda area. The home has impressive details, from lovely interior arched doorways, to a wrought iron staircase rail, tiled roof, ornate windows, and even a tower. This house is truly an Orinda gem. Many thanks to OHS member John Holmgren for arranging this tour, and to the hospitality of Dr. Eugene Garbarino and his wife, Joan, for allowing OHS to tour their wonderful home.

OHS is not possible without our wonderful volunteers, and Orinda students are joining the effort.

Many thanks to OHS student volunteers Spencer Holmes, Miramonte Seniors Mike Lopez & Jon Belden, and high school student Will Newhart who create a powerpoint presentation for OHS.

Thank You

Recent Donations to OHS

- Fred Smith donated various items from the Willows restaurant and other Orinda memorabilia.
- Friends of the Library has donated lots of books.
- Tracy Blanchard donated a 1976 Contra Costa Sun supplement about Orinda.
- Susan Ross donated a 2005 Orinda Film Festival Button.
- Jean Lyford donated a Black's paper grocery bag.
- Sarah Douglas donated various Orinda shopping bags.
- Jeff Little, manager of Bank of America, donated photos of Lonie Bee's paintings that hang in the Orinda bank.
- Ruth Vurek donated a Virginia Hammond pencil.
- Contra Costa Sanitary District donated a commemorative 1946-2006 book.
- Wayne York donated a photograph of deLaveaga train depot.
- Miramonte High School donated a DVD of digitized images of the Mirador newspapers and a video celebrating 50 years of Miramonte.
- Dorothee Paterson and family gave a generous cash donation in memory of her husband, Bob Paterson.

More Volunteers Needed

The OHS museum desperately needs volunteers to staff it. Please call the museum at 254-1353 if you can help anytime during Monday, Wednesday or Friday 3 to 5 pm.

Rotary Helps OHS

The Orinda Rotary Club has provided the Orinda Historical Society with a generous grant which OHS used to purchase a new display case. OHS is most grateful for the continuing support of the Orinda Rotary Club.

Many Thanks to Susan Ross

For over four years, Susan Ross has been the OHS Archivist. She has worked countless hours organizing artifacts, volunteers, and helping out with various activities. At the end of January, she is stepping down as archivist so she can pursue personal goals such as traveling. Luckily, she will continue to be an OHS volunteer working with Miramonte student helpers. She has been an amazing asset to OHS. The Archivist position will now be filled by Kent Long with assistance from Dan Holmes.

Display Your Creativity!

Help design and create displays for the Historical Society. We would like to set up a committee to come up with design ideas and then implement them. Currently, 5-6 displays are put up per year at the Historical Society Museum. It does not take a lot of extra time and is fun! Plus, you'll learn a lot about our local history. If interested, please contact Barbara Burkhalter at 254-6868 or barb@barbsdesk.com

A Fond Farewell

Unfortunately, during these past few months Orinda has lost some notable citizens:

Ben Randall Jr.: Long time Orinda resident Ben Randall Jr., our featured speaker at the 2005 OHS holiday dinner, passed away last month. OHS was fortunate to have had him tell his memories of growing up in Orinda as the son of the manager of the Orinda Theater— now, these fond remembrances are preserved in the OHS archives.

A. Richard Newton: An OHS member and prominent Orinda citizen. Richard Newton was Dean of Engineering at UC Berkeley.

Alyson deLaveaga: Longtime OHS member and Orinda resident, Alyson deLaveaga was wife of Ned deLaveaga who was the son of the original Orinda deLaveaga family.

Kathryn Trask Swackhamer: An early environmentalist, Kathryn was instrumental in starting the garden at Wagner Ranch when it first opened in 1969. She was part of Orinda's organic gardening group the Green Garbage Gang. As an active Wagner Ranch school volunteer in the 1970's, she took students on field trips to her gardens at her home, which was built in 1898, on South Trail in Orinda. A very active actress for 50 years, Kathryn appeared in numerous theatrical productions in San Francisco, Berkeley, and the east bay. In her 44 years of living in Orinda, Kathryn loved the wilderness and natural feeling of the area, and she gave back to the community in many ways such as being involved in the many planting in the area for the schools and the community center.

Remembering Robert E. Paterson

By Jill Lamont

Bob Paterson came to Orinda in 1950, building a house in Sleepy Hollow on evenings and weekends. His two oldest children, Kaki and Karol, fell asleep in their cribs to the sound of a table saw. Years later when he retired from Chevron as an engineer, he became devoted to helping the historical society and was a major source of support and leadership in the 1980's and early 1990's. Bob was the driving force behind cataloging records, photos and historical treasures for the first time on a computer. In fact, he donated our first computer. Bob was OHS president from 1988 to 1990. He was also one of the early members of the Orinda Historic Landmarks Committee. Bob is fondly remembered for his thoroughness, attention to detail and for recruiting younger people to the historical society. When approaching a seemingly intractable challenge Bob maintained: "There is no job you can't do if you break it down into small enough pieces."

Trains in Orinda?

By Kent and Teresa Long

deLaveaga Train Depot in Orinda, c.1905
Collection of Wayne York, New Bremen, Ohio

When our son was five his idea of a dream house included a real live train going through the backyard. We explained that unfortunately Orinda didn't have any trains, but despite his utter disappointment and disbelief, "what kind of town was this anyway," we moved back to Orinda. If only he had been around here in the 1890's when Orinda was in fact served by a narrow-gauge line, the California and Nevada Railroad.

Incorporated in 1881, the "C&N" was led by Captain "Denver" Smith, who had built several successful railroads in Colorado. The line was planned to run from Emeryville, through Berkeley, San Pablo, and present-day Orinda, then extend through the Central Valley, over the Sierra Nevada near Sonora Pass, and terminate in Nevada, where it would connect with the Carson and Colorado Railroad. Trains began running between Emeryville and San Pablo in 1885, and the track was extended to the Orinda Crossroads (then called Bryant) by 1891. Impressive trestles were built in Orinda to cross the local creeks, and three stations were established, Orinda Park (at Wagner Ranch), de Laveaga (on the deLaveaga family's property at Miner Rd.), and Bryant. Picnickers from Oakland would take the train out to enjoy the Orinda countryside, and hay grown in Lafayette and other local produce would be transported by the train back into market. As it turned out, the Bryant station at the Crossroads was as far as the railroad would ever reach, its finances hampered by competition and frequent washouts of the tracks. The train stopped running in late 1900. The right of way on the Berkeley side had long been desired by the Santa Fe railroad, which purchased the remnants of the C&N. Ultimately, part of that line was used to build BART through El Cerrito—so even today, you can still ride the rails on the old C&N right of way!

Luckily, some things have survived, like this photograph of the deLaveaga train depot recently donated by Wayne York of Ohio. Amazingly, this tiny train depot is still around today; it was declared the 14th City of Orinda landmark in 2000. The Orinda Landmark Committee, with help from the Orinda Rotary Club, has relocated and restored the building. It is now located at the Orinda Crossroads on the corner of Bates Blvd. and Davis Road. Inside the building are displays about the railroad and early Orinda. This is the last stop on the 3rd grade history tours that the OHS offers to students. The deLaveaga train station is available for viewing by the public. Call OHS member Kay Norman at 254-9536 for more information.

Vanessa Crews AUHSD Board Member; Marty Schimbor, Miramonte journalism teacher; Cheryl Davis, the Digital Media teacher at Miramonte who oversaw the making of the Miramonte video; Sue Wecht, volunteer historian; and three Miramonte alumni, Squire Fridell, Vicki Saputo and Nancy Peterson, who each gave amusing anecdotes about teenage life in Orinda in the 50s and 60s.

As a special treat, the directors of the Miramonte video, Miramonte high school seniors Scott Demunck and Tyler Pavey, spoke about making the film, and what resources they had used.

OHS is grateful to Widgie Hastings for video taping the entire dinner program. This video, along with the 50 Years of Miramonte video, is available at OHS for viewing. Many thanks to all the speakers, long time OHS member Dave Englehart who helped with the wine, the Orinda Community Church, the Orinda Senior Village who loaned centerpieces, and all the volunteers who organized and set up the dinner.
